Om Nama Shivaya

SSAATTBB Chorus
(brief S1 solo)

NOTE BY THE COMPOSER

I am no spiritualist, but in my second year in Santa Monica (1980) I was walking down a street near the entrance to the famous pier, and there was a giant tent set up in an empty lot with a motley crowd streaming in, of all ages. I was at loose ends, a little down, and curious. I learned that a great sri guru was arriving soon for a big assembly. I went in respectfully; the place was packed with a crowd all sitting on the floor. Earnest young Hindu men in suits and ties were gently moving people closer together to pack more in. Perhaps 600 people already. On a low platform before them were seated several violinists, hand-organists, and sitarists. And they were playing, and all in the tent were slowly chanting, this Om Nama Shivaya melody, in unison (with heterophonic ornaments in the violins and sitars), over and over and over and over and over. It was like Music From When the Earth Was Formed. Young men were weeping profusely and rocking like Yeshiva Buchers. I stayed for about 15 minutes, soaking it up if not exactly committing to it, and then slipped out when it became clear that it could be hours before the guru appeared. I never forgot the tune or the effect of the mass chant, and brought away the impression that it was The Tune for that text. It is not; there are hundreds, but it is a very very ancient prayer, a salute to the goddess Shiva and one's inner heart.

This choral setting is a restrained, respectful “arrangement” of the tune that avoids the normal arranger’s gimmicks (filler transitions using unrelated material, arbitrary shifts of key up a step, gratuitous counterlines, etc.) Starting in the very low unison basses, it proceeds by accumulation of upper parts at repeats, then on various fairly obvious harmonizations, richer and richer, then two 8-part unison/octave canons, one close, the next closer, with two peaks, the second sumptuously harmonized, and then a long unison thinning of parts and fade-out. No matter where it seems to go harmonically, it never really leaves the fundamental tone of D in the end. Vocal overtone “harmonics” are added at the end by the singers who have dropped out. The effect is intended to be hypnotic but not numbing, more like a gentle expansion of consciousness through gradually enhanced and expanded repetition. Everything comes out of the core chant. Om.

[DURATION: 9-10 minutes]

Om Namah Shivaya

(I bow to the Inner Self/Shiva)

Trancelike throughout

Stagger breathing on very long notes as needed.

Always get a good breath after "Na-mah"

Sing this section at least 6 times. Singers gradually drop out at end of each repeat, leaving one on a part, then last S, then A, then T, then down to last bass solo.

Meanwhile, those who drop out add vocalized D with overtone singing on each final "Ya", slowly up and down the harmonic series to 5th-overtone A and back down, stop when last bass is exposed.
