

BLUE SKY

by Meredith Kennedy

Blue sky, blue sky, blue sky
Will I ever pass this way again
Or find another perfect day again
Underneath this perfect blue sky?

And before me I see nothing but
Blue sky, blue sky, blue sky
No limits, no regrets, no looking back with heavy sighs
Not forgetting all you gave to me
But not afraid to say goodbye.

A day for memory not leaving
For nostalgia, but not grieving
A day for everything beyond the end of what was left behind
Underneath a cool blue sky
With my spirit flying high
Remembering for always
All the courage that you gave to me
Yet not afraid to say goodbye.

Blue sky, blue sky, blue sky
Will I ever pass this way again
Or find another perfect day again
Underneath this perfect blue sky?

But now that I am standing here
The sky seems far away
I wonder when the clouds will come
The sunlight going gray
When I think of all the things I really want to say
I don't want to say,
I am afraid to say goodbye. . .